

Plan could ruin health-care system

Shrewd, tactical diversions are headlining many news outlets as behind the scenes social engineering gurus seek to disrupt our prosperity, freedom and way of life and send us down the river into oblivion. As the socialized health-care puzzle is quietly put together by the Senate Finance Committee, Americans are oblivious to the mounting Katrina-like storm of another public funded program, employer mandates and Canadian style waits for health care.

Red herrings and smokescreens are taking the headlines yet within a week or so the secretive Senate Finance Committee will have completed their crafty concoction with little to no debate nor comment from the public. This intoxicating bill will be drunk and enjoyed for a spell but in the end it will produce weeping and gnashing of teeth here on planet earth as it takes the American economy and health care into the brink of despair.

Has there been a deafening silence from the insurance industry and the medical profession on this and why? The "juice" is poured and the nauseating socialist pirates in Congress will soon have us over the rail. Action and prayer cures fear and lots of both are needed pronto — say no to a public plan before it reaches Congress.

Guaranteed coverage for all can be achieved through subsidized private plans while maintaining personal control, competition, choice and quality of care. No e-mails or phone calls are accepted by the Finance Committee. Public, written comment to them is needed today. Write to:
